and Opportunities posed by COVID-19

Presenters: Alex Rossi, County of Los Angeles and

Tyrone Spears, City of Los Angeles

(1 CE - Certificate provided)

Much has been said about the impact and consequences of the COVID-19 pandemic, and the merits of different approaches of managing the crisis. From this session, you will learn how the County of Los Angeles and City of Los Angeles adapted to COVID-19 with urgency and collaboration within the Workers' Compensation setting. Hear first-hand what policies worked from the beginning of broad sweeping "Executive Orders" granting protection for claims filed for first responders, - to the tidal wave of Workers' Compensation claims that followed.

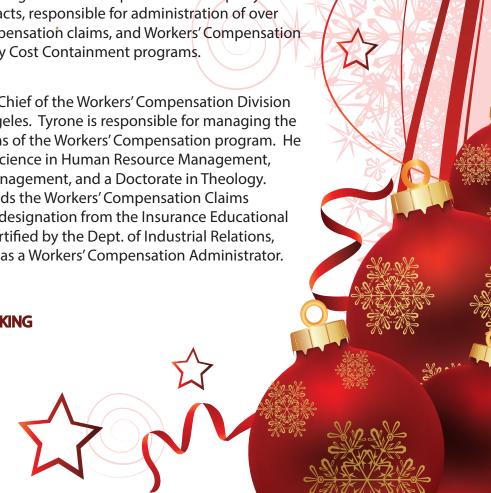

Alex Rossi is the County of Los Angeles Workers' Compensation Contract Administrator. The County's self-insured Workers' Compensation program, one of the largest in the state, is one of several programs under the Risk Management Branch of the County Executive Office. Alex assists in overseeing Workers' Compensation third party administration contracts, responsible for administration of over 32,500 Workers' Compensation claims, and Workers' Compensation Medical and Disability Cost Containment programs.

Tyrone Spears is the Chief of the Workers' Compensation Division at the City of Los Angeles. Tyrone is responsible for managing the day-to-day operations of the Workers' Compensation program. He holds a Bachelor of Science in Human Resource Management, Executive MBA in Management, and a Doctorate in Theology. Professionally, he holds the Workers' Compensation Claims Professional (WCCP) designation from the Insurance Educational Association and is certified by the Dept. of Industrial Relations, Self-Insurance Plans, as a Workers' Compensation Administrator.
